

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image reading device ready to operate at higher speed is built as an IC chip having a plurality of processing sections, of which each has a plurality of image reading photoelectric conversion elements, a plurality of transistors for reading a photoelectric conversion signal from the image reading photoelectric conversion elements, a signal selection circuit for sequentially selecting the plurality of transistors, and a signal output line by way of which the photoelectric conversion signal is transmitted.